

Bag Tag Challenge rules

1. Any TTDGC members who currently and physically possess a bag tag may challenge, be challenged or participate in bag tag challenges.
2. Any member with a higher Bag Tag number may challenge any player with a lower Bag Tag number to a round of disc golf.
3. Members cannot avoid challenges by leaving the Bag Tag at home or by concealing your Bag Tag (see forfeiture).
4. Challenges may be made in person, by telephone or electronically (ie, social media, email).
When a challenge has been accepted, neither player can participate in Casual challenges until the agreed upon match has taken place.
5. The player receiving the challenge can choose the course/layout to be played AND must make a “fair and reasonable” effort to be available within 1 weeks. With the exception of if the person is unable to play ie; illness, injury, travel etc. The maximum amount of time someone could be physically unable to play without forfeiting their tag would be 3 weeks.
6. If the challenger cannot agree to a reasonable time or date for the match within 1 week, the challenge is void and both players may look for new challenges.
7. Once the challenge has been agreed upon, any changes must be agreed upon otherwise a forfeiture may occur.
8. If the challenger has the lowest score for the round, the tags must be exchanged immediately following the round.
9. Challenges are on a round-by-round basis; i.e. challenges are for one round only in a multiple round event.
10. If Defender declines the challenge, they must swap tags with the Challenger.
11. If the challenged player fails to show up to defend their tag, they must forfeit their tag and take the highest tag of the challenger(s).
12. Head-to-Head Challenges must be a minimum round of 9 holes.
13. Challenges, even those made via other methods, need to be posted on the TTDGC discord Bag Tag channel. This will make sure members are not avoiding challenges.
14. If tags are exchanged one of the participants will be responsible for posting the results in discord, as well as updating the live standings spread sheet.

Casual Round Challenges (CRC)

CDGA bag tag holders may casually meet at a course OR agree to meet at a course/ me to compete for bag tags in:

- Head-to-Head (me vs. you) challenges.

- Group Challenges, where multiple players each put a Bag Tag at stake during the group round.
 - All participating tag holders must agree on location and layout prior to the start of the round.
- Tag rounds must take place on the same course and layout. For example, players cannot compete for tags when one player is playing long tees and the other is playing shorts.
- Members may deny a casual, same day, head-to-head challenge as long as they can play within the week mentioned in rule #4.

Organized Group Challenges

- Will be organized and ran by TTDGC board members and announced on the discord channel.
- All bag tags will be gathered at the beginning of the round by the TTDGC board member hosting the tag match.
- Any course specific rules for the match will be relayed prior to tee off
- Depending on the number of players, groups will all tee off from a single hole, or start shot gun style.
- After the round the CDGA board members will log the new tag numbers for each player and then the tags will be re-distributed.

Wins, Ties, and Exchanges

Q: How do I win?

A: The player with the lowest score at the end of the challenge round earns the lowest numbered Bag Tag among the challengers.

Q: I won, when do I receive my winning Bag Tag?

A: Bag Tags must be exchanged immediately following the round.

Q: What happens if we have a tie?

A: In the event of a tie, the player who started with the lowest numbered Bag Tag will be awarded the lowest numbered Bag Tag. This may require some sorting in a group challenge.

Rematches

Challengers who have just won, may, but do not have to accept/schedule a rematch challenge from a player that s/he just beat, unless one of the following occurs:

- Either player completes another, separate challenge.
- One week has passed.

Whichever comes first.

Forfeiture

Each Bag Tag belongs to the entire club membership and should be accessible to all club members. Any club member will be required to surrender his/her Bag Tag if:

- He/She is found to be purposely concealing the Bag Tag, especially with a low number.
- Refusing and/or “forgetting” to carry his/her Bag Tag, especially to events where members are “likely” to be present.
- Generally denying Bag Tag access to other members (TBD by 2 or more club officers).
- Abandoning a challenge while it is in play
- The player possesses tag #1-10 and hasn’t played in a qualifying challenge within 45 days (March 15th through November 15th)

If you lose your Bag Tag, please report it immediately. You may then purchase the next lowest number Bag Tag available. Replacement tags, if available, will cost $10.00.

Rules are subject to change and the CDGA Board of Directors will decide all disputes. The CDGA Board of Directors reserves the right to revoke your Bag Tag at our discretion.
